Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from History of the Seventh Iowa Veteran Volunteer Infantry During the Civil War Of the fifty regiments of brave and loyal troops that went out from Iowa to battle for the right in the Civil War, none had a more brilliant career or shed a brighter light upon the State or Nation, than the Seventh Iowa Veteran Volunteer Infantry. From the time of its first engagement, General Grant's first battle of the War of the Rebellion, Belmont, Mo., November the 7th, 1861, to the Grand Review at Washington at the close of the war, its name and fame was ever prominently before the country. No regiment was more a pride among the lovers and defenders of the Union - none more emphatically a terror to its foes. Yet, of the brave deeds of the gallant men of this regiment, of their varied experiences - joyful or painful, of their hardships and trials, of their toilsome marches and campaigns, of their martyred dead and their honored living, no connected published record has been made. Without which it must have soon passed into oblivion, or have lived in the uncertain recollections of the participants of those stirring scenes. To rescue its memory from obscurity has been my ambition. To me it has been a labor of love, without hope of reward pecuniarily. At the request of a large number of the regiment, in reunion assembled, I was persuaded to make this, my first literary attempt. I have endeavored in the general write-up to give a truthful review of the service of the regiment. It was my fortune to have been a member during its entire service and...
